

To our Preston Feather Team,

We have several credible sources indicating Governor Whitmer will announce some type of stay-at-home order soon – she has a press conference scheduled at 11 a.m. Here’s what this means:

1/ We may be considered an “essential business” and remain open. The Homeland Security definition of essential businesses includes building materials suppliers, distributors and construction trades. This has been considered by other states with stay-at-home orders.

2/ The order will likely take effect end of day, but don’t know the timing for sure yet.

3/ In any event, we will continue to arrange for any employee that can to work remotely in order to minimize group exposure for the virus.

Please review your email message promptly for updates from me and others on our leadership team for our plans. We have a communication plan in place, and of course you and your family can stay updated on our COVID 19 response and safety measures on our web site at the link below:

<https://prestonfeather.com/employee/>

Kirk